

LIGHT AT THE END OF TIME

Is Redemption Dawning from the West?

A Documentary with a striking and timely message for Jews, for Christians, and for the tens of thousands of spiritual seekers who are now rejecting the doctrines of the Church and looking to Judaism for answers and recognition. They claim to be descendents of the Lost Ten Tribes.

The question is, "Why?"

PREMISE

Light at the End of Time will be a 1.5 hour "focus film", a documentary exploring a growing religious movement of former Christians, who now embrace the legitimacy of original Jewish Scripture. They no longer call themselves Christians. They claim to be "Israelites" or 'Ephraimites'. A bike gang in Texas ties tsi-tsiot to their leather vests. They call themselves "Jerusalem Disciples". Horsemen and cattlehands from miles around gather each Saturday morning under a horse training arena in Colorado. What's the attraction? Their synagogue and the weekly Shabbat Torah Service. Forty people in South Africa suddenly convert to Orthodox Judaism. Hundreds of non-Jews in Australia gather to celebrate the Jewish Feasts. Torah classes for non-Jews abound in New Zealand. Ulpans in Israel and around the world are filled with those seeking to learn Jewish Scripture in the Holy Tongue. Divorce rates are climbing as families break up because one of the spouses has suddenly become "too Jewish" when they aren't Jewish at all! Who are these people? Has the information age created another hybrid mass of Spiritual Seekers, neither Jewish nor Christian? Could they be in some way connected to the prophesied Latter Days' return of Rachel's lost children, or are these people the prophesied righteous, shedding falsehood, after centuries of mind-controlling influence by the Roman Church?

TREATMENT

This documentary will allow the proponents and opponents of this amazing, yet perplexing, religious movement to present their claims, both its strengths and its weaknesses. People at the very centre of this religious movement will bare their hearts and souls, sharing their personal pain, angst, joy and hopes. Orthodox Jews will respond to these claims and stories professionally and personally. The audience will be left with the nagging question, "How does one interpret these bizarre, yet heart-rending, religious transformations?" The documentary will examine the impact and far-reaching influences this Movement holds for both Judaism and Christianity. The Church, losing many of its faithful, condemn any rejection of the Divinity of their Messiah and find themselves defensive and aggressive against former Christians using Jewish arguments to challenge Church theology. The Jewish world is confronted with a diverse multitude of non-Jews adopting their customs, beliefs, and pro-Zionist convictions. Is this identity theft? Is it yet another form of replacement theology? Are they Bnei Noach? Who and what are they? The Israeli government is confronted with people, willing to live and die for Israel, yet in opposition to the Government's anti-religious leftist leanings, and 'law of return' statutes. The Rabbinate is challenged with increased conversion, and a multitude of varying beliefs that range from demonizing them for a perceived lack of integrity to idolizing them. The deceptive, but growing Messianic groups, led by many former Jews, are like a magnet to these people, offering them Christianity concealed in a prayer shawl. The Karaites are making inroads into the growing movement, teaching Torah-hungry Ephraimites that the Torah Sh'Miktav is the only source of truth and demonizing Rabbinical Judaism in the process. Meanwhile, the numbers of Bnei Noah are swelling as weary Ephraimites seek a spiritual resting place, but once settled as Bnei Noach, they find they are bereft of both religious traditions and communities.

These former Christians are now caught in a frantic search for identity. This search leaves them dangerously vulnerable to forming a blend of religious beliefs that could lead to yet another ideological threat to the Jewish people. We will present the unique opportunity facing the Jewish community to contribute to this spiritually transient but receptive mass of people. These people who have broken through the dogmas of the Church are open and thirsty for Jewish teaching and guidance. Who are the Jewish religious and political leaders who have stepped into the gap to begin doing so, and why? Who are the Jewish leaders that are fighting to bring restraint and order in the face of a religious movement that demands recognition?

The Ephraimites have broken ranks with their past and are looking to Jews for a sense of their future. Without Jewish awareness and response, they are ample prey for religious charlatans; therefore, a clear distinction will be presented between traditional Judaic belief and the multitude of religious movements that presently purport to offer a truer “form” of Judaism. What we will discover at the bottom of this religious migration is the age-old battle between good and evil, truth versus falsehood, and the conflict of pure Monotheism against the seduction of worldwide paganism. This is the battle. The battlefield is ultimately within the hearts and minds of all people around the globe.

Light at the End of Time will reveal a move of G-d amongst Western nations that is affecting thousands, causing them to change their identity, their religion, their very lives in a dramatic turning back to Sinai. Due to their numbers and diverse spiritual make-up, the Ephraimites are the ideal vehicle to reveal turbulent spiritual undercurrents stirring in the Western nations. These undercurrents are strengthening dramatically. They have already had significant repercussions in the respective nations, including calculable damage to the Christian church. These developments have been intentionally ignored by both secular and mainstream religious media.

A frank examination of the Ephraimite phenomenon contrasted with an Orthodox Jewish response will reveal prophecy unfolding. It will demonstrate the unwavering constancy of the Eternal Covenant between Hashem and Israel. Jews need to know what is happening. Some of the Ephraimite stories will inspire awe and encourage kiruv; others stories will raise valid concerns. Jews are being approached by Ephraimites on a regular basis and they are not prepared, they don't know how to respond. Many Rabbis now using websites for outreach are finding that over half the inquiries they receive come from non-Jews.

Light at the End of Time will be a media vehicle with a broad reach to the nations and to Jews. It will touch emotions as it inspires spiritual renewal and a quest for truth. It will open minds to see the prophetic movements of the Hand of G-d in history. It will raise questions that need answers. Both Jews and non-Jews need to see, need to hear these stories and an authoritative Jewish response to them. It's all about telling the world what Jews, Jerusalem, the Land of Israel and Torah are supposed to mean to the world.
